Abstract

Business network today are evolving to support people who are on the move. Employees and employers, students and faculty, government agents and those they serve, sports fans and shoppers, all are mobile and many of them are connected. Perhaps everyone has a mobile phone that we route instant messages to when we are away from our computer. This is the vision of mobility—an environment where people can take their connection to the network along with them on the road. We continue this motivation for wireless technology as a first step in our wireless exploration.

References

Index Terms

Computer Science  Engineering and Technology

Keywords