Abstract

Wireless sensor networks (WSNs) are going to replace old mode of information collection in various area like medical, industry, communication. In this paper authors propose a new Ultra stable Threshold sensitive election protocol (USEP), which is a reactive routing protocol using five level heterogeneity. Reactive networks are fast in response then proactive network. Here protocol has been tested for variation in temperature sensing application.

References

- Smaragdakis, Matta, Bestavros, "SEP: A Stable EI election Protocol for clustered

- Femi A. Adenohunmu, Jeremiah D. Deng, &quot;An Enhanced Stable Election Protocol (SEP) for Clustered Heterogeneous WSN. &quot; Department of Information Science, University of Otago, New Zealand.

- Li Qing, Qingxin Zhu, Mingwen Wang, &quot;Design of a distributed energy-efficient clustering algorithm for wireless sensor networks, &quot; in Proceedings of INFOCOM 2003, April 2003.

Index Terms

Computer Science Wireless

Keywords

WSN SEP LEACH TEEN Cluster.