Abstract

This paper describes block-chain architecture as a new solution to provide a new age reliable mechanism for exchanging medical records very securely and efficiently. The Advanced Block-Chain architecture was designed to meet the demands in growing healthcare systems as well as in the new form of social interactive norms. It is going to reform the e-Health industry with countless proficiency by eradicating many of the intermediators known to world today.

References

3. W. Liu, "Digital Health Care (DHC) Information Technology Infrastructure Framework",

13. Digital Imaging and Communications in Medicine (DICOM)

Index Terms

Computer Science                  Security
Keywords

eHealth, security, block-chain, audit and tracking