Abstract

Cryptography is the science of transmission and reception of secret messages. Recently electronic communication has become an essential part of every aspect of human life. Message encryption has become very essential to avoid the threat against possible attacks by hackers during transmission process of the message. In the present paper, new cryptographic schemes are proposed using finite state machine and recurrence matrix.

Reference

- W. Y. YE Yongwei and YANG

Index Terms

Computer Science

Security

Key words

Moore Machine key recurrence relation cryptography