Abstract

Ubiquitous computing environment demands a dynamic access control mechanism that can adapt to the changing security requirement of the computing environment. In this paper an authorization model for ubiquitous computing environment is proposed and a formal approach is adopted to design a flexible and scalable model to support intelligent authorization process in ubiquitous computing environment.

References

Index Terms
Computer Science Security

Keywords  