Abstract

This paper presents a review of the literature on the use of artificial neural networks in digital watermarking. Digital watermarking is a recent technology evolved to prevent illegal copy or reproduction of digital content. Different neural network based approaches have been categorized based on their applications for embedding and extracting components of watermarking.

References

A Review of Applications of Neural Network In Watermarking

Technology. IGI Global, 12 2007.

- W. Kinzel, and Kanter, "Neural Cryptography", in Proc. 9th In'l Conf. on Neural Information Processing ICONIP&amp;oacute;02), vol. 3, pp. 1351-1354, 2002.

Index Terms

Computer Science
Emerging Trends in Technology

Keywords

Watermarking Steganography Artificial Neural Networks