Abstract

This paper presents a survey of quality improvement of various products in process industries and present how data mining can be used in manufacturing for improving the quality, maintenance, control and production of a product.

References

- Perzyk, M., Kochanski, A., and Kozlowsk, J., 2008, "Data mining in manufacturing: significance analysis of process parameters”; Proc. IMechE Vol. 222 Part B: J.
- Chen-Fu Chien, Wen-Chih Wang, Jen-Chieh Cheng, Data mining for yield enhancement in semiconductor manufacturing and an empirical study”; Expert Systems with Applications
- Bashar Al-Salim, Mansour Abdoli, “Data mining for decision support of the quality improvement process”; Proceedings of the Eleventh Americas Conference on Information Systems, Omaha, NE, USA August 11th-14th 200 . pp 1462-1469
- Shu-guang He1, Zhen He, G. Alan Wang and Li Li, “Data Mining and Knowledge Discovery in Real Life Application”; Book edited by: Julio Ponce and Adem Karahoca, pp.
438, February 2009, I-Tech, Vienna, Austria
- Gulser Koksa, Inci Batmaz, Murat Caner Testik, “A review of data mining applications for quality improvement in manufacturing industry”; Expert Systems with Applications 38 (2011) 13448–13467
- Jayanthi Ranjan “Applications of data mining techniques in pharmaceutical Industry
- Dan Braha and Armin Shmilovici, “Data Mining for Improving a Cleaning Process in the Semiconductor industry”; IEEE transactions on semiconductor manufacturing, VOL.
15, NO. 1, FEBRUARY 2002 pp (91-101)

Index Terms

Computer Science
Emerging Trends in Technology

Keywords

Quality Improvement  Data Mining  Manufacturing  Process Industries  Product