Abstract

Fourier transform gives relationship between the light distribution of a source and the light distribution appearing on a screen illuminated by the source. The amplitude distribution of light falling on a screen is provided by the Fourier transform of the source light distribution.

References

Fourier Transform- An important tool for optics

Index Terms

Computer Science
Emerging Trends in Technology

Keywords

Absorption And Transmission